

A photograph of the National Galleries of Scotland building, a grand Gothic Revival structure made of red sandstone. The image shows a section of the facade with multiple levels of arched windows and doorways, each adorned with intricate carvings and sculptures. The building is set against a clear sky. In the foreground, there are two ornate black street lamps and a few people walking on the sidewalk. The overall scene is a classic urban setting in Edinburgh.

Business meetings, conferences and lectures

At the National Galleries of Scotland, when you hire a space for your business meeting, conference or lecture, you support our charitable mission to protect the nation's art collection for the world. So your event for colleagues or clients will reflect your company's creative outlook and place your event in stunning surroundings, whilst offering a vital contribution to Scotland's cultural future. Select the space that will best facilitate your conferencing needs and provide a second-to-none inspirational destination for your delegates.

Venue hire spaces

If you wish to bring your delegates to a meeting space that offers more than just a practical experience, then hiring one of Scotland's national art venues offers the most cultural incentive.

Modern Two | Boardroom | Boardroom 16

For an opportunity to take your colleagues away from their usual office space, and conduct a meeting amongst the nation's Surrealist art collection, this boardroom is sophisticated yet practical with audio visual equipment included.

National | Hawthornden Lecture Theatre | Theatre 190

This smart conference space is located in the heart of the gallery, with level access to Princes Street Gardens. The space has comfortable tiered seating, full audio visual support onsite and is only a few minutes from international travel links.

Portrait | Great Hall | Theatre 70

The acoustics within the ecclesiastical Great Hall cascade through three levels at the centre of the gallery making this enchanting space ideal for all types of performances from spoken word performances to musical recitals or lectures.

Portrait | A K Bell Room | Classroom 40, Boardroom 18

This meeting space is conveniently located on the lower level of the gallery, and has full audio visual technical provision. The characterful exposed red sandstone brickwork of the interior, set against the modern furnishings, present a stylish environment for your delegates.

"From start to finish the customer service that we receive from the National Galleries of Scotland team is excellent. They are always on call, and make sure everything runs smoothly on the day. They have such a professional team. The AV technician does an amazing job at running the presentations, and has many useful tips on the lead up to the event as well. Looking forward to holding our next event there soon!"
